Doors & Cabinets

Doors such as sliding doors and entry doors can cost between $70-120 to paint depending on intricacy and if primer is needed. This includes both sides.

Cabinet doors can range between $70-120 depending on intricacy. This includes both sides.

Cabinet drawers can cost between $60-100 depending on intricacy. This includes both sides.

Cabinet frames are priced by taking the number of doors and drawers and adding a percentage (typically 20-80%) depending on intricacy and whether the insides are being painted.

Rooms

Small Rooms [bathrooms, walk-in closets, small kitchens, stairways, hallways, some bedrooms. Think 10x10]

The cost to paint a small room can range between $180-600 depending on the surface being painted, whether primer is needed or not, and intricacy level.

Medium Rooms [twin bedrooms, standard kitchens, large stairways, breezeways. Think 11x15]

The cost to paint medium rooms can be between $260-800 depending on the intricacy and surfaces being painted as well as whether primer is needed.

Large Rooms [dining rooms, master bedrooms, garages. Think 12x16]

The cost to paint a large room can be between $380-1,000 depending on the surface and intricacy, and whether primer is needed.

X-Large Rooms [Think 15x18, large basements, or great rooms]

The cost to paint an x-large room can be between $400-1200. This depends on the intricacy and surfaces that need to be painted as well as whether primer is needed.
